At the southern tip of Baja California, Cabo San Lucas and San Jose del Cabo (collectively, Los Cabos) offer tawny, beautiful beaches, golf courses, and townscapes with great restaurants and historic buildings, not to mention vistas of the Pacific Ocean and the Sea of Cortez. In full recovery mode after the ravages of Hurricane Odile in 2014, this favorite of celebrities is a fun and culturally rich spring break destination.

Set up home base at the ultra-luxe The Resort at Pedregal in Cabo San Lucas. The secluded resort offers a fantastic spring break package deal, or you can piece together a stellar time yourself with a la carte activities, like a Teen Guide program for big kids and a Tortuguitas ("Little Turtles") Kids Club for the youngsters. Parents can enjoy the pools and spa or explore the nearby towns.

If you're looking for something a bit more low-key, head to Royal Solaris Los Cabos in San Jose del Cabo. The all-inclusive resort offers a value package for families in their 390-room property. You'll have access to five restaurants, a kid's water park, day and evening programs, as well as kids' club facilities and four swimming pools. You're also just steps away from the area's golden beaches.
